America's Cup

Laurie Werner

Bermuda successfully outbid serious competition—including sailing hubs like San Francisco and Newport, R.I.—for the honor of hosting the 35th edition of the America's Cup (americascup.com). Of the more than 100,000 spectators expected for the monthlong event, which runs from May 26 through June 27 on the island's Great Sound, the most fortunate will arrive via superyacht. For prime positioning, the marina at the new Louis Vuitton America's Cup Village offers views over the entire racecourse. Additional berths can be booked at Caroline Bay Marina (carolinebaymarina.com), which opened in March just south of the course. Visitors traveling sans private yacht can also catch the action by chartering a crewed catamaran—complete with a personal captain and gourmet chef—from the Moorings (moorings.com). For a view on dry land, head for the private open-air deck at the America's Cup Village's Longtail Lounge, just opposite the course's finish line.
